- The number of applications denied and the bases for the denials.
- The number of pupils attending public school in a nonresident school district under the full-time open enrollment program.

The report covers school years 2005-06, 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09.

The report was prepared by Mary Jo Cleaver, School Administration Consultant, with assistance from Donna Wood, IS Systems Development Services Specialist; Jennifer Danfield, School Administration Consultant; Kari Gensler Santistevan, Education Specialist; and Tricia Collins, Director, School Management Services.

II. DESCRIPTION OF THE FULL-TIME OPEN ENROLLMENT PROGRAM

Application Procedure

The full-time open enrollment program is created in Wis. Stats. § 118.51. The administrative rules are in Wis. Admin. Code ch. PI 36.

Under the full-time open enrollment program (open enrollment), pupils in grades kindergarten (including 4-year-old kindergarten) to 12 may apply to attend any public school district in the state. Parents may apply for a child to attend 4-year-old kindergarten, prekindergarten, early childhood education, and school-operated day care only if the child's resident school district offers the same type of program and if the child is eligible for the program. A pupil is permitted to submit applications to no more than three nonresident school boards in any school year.

The open enrollment statute sets out a specific schedule for application, notification of approval and denial, appeal and notification of intent to attend. From the beginning of the open enrollment program through the years covered in this report, the application period occurred during a three-week application period in February. Parents were notified of approval or denial by early April.

School boards may deny pupils' applications only for specific criteria set forth in the statute:

- The school board of a nonresident school district (the school district the pupil wishes to attend) may deny a pupil's application only for the following reasons (and only if specified in school board policy):
 - Space is not available in the school, program, class, or grade the pupil would attend. If there are more applications than there are spaces available, the nonresident school board must accept or reject applications on a random basis, except the school board must give preference to pupils who are already attending school in the nonresident school district and to their siblings. A nonresident school board may adopt a policy that guarantees approval to currently-attending pupils and/or siblings of currently-attending pupils. A nonresident school board may create a waiting list of pupils whose applications were denied.
 - The pupil has been expelled during the current or two preceding school years (or a disciplinary proceeding is pending) for certain reasons.¹ In addition, a nonresident school board may refuse to enroll a pupil if the pupil is currently serving an expulsion that extends into the school year for which the pupil has applied for open enrollment.²
 - The pupil has been referred for an initial special education evaluation that has not been completed.
 - The special education and related services required by a pupil's individualized education program (IEP) are not available in the nonresident school district or there is no space in the special education program or related services required by the pupil's IEP.
 - For school districts that participate in the chapter 220 integration transfer program³, if approving the transfer would increase racial imbalance in the school district. However, on December 20, 2007, Wisconsin's attorney general issued an opinion concerning the effect of a United States Supreme Court decision⁴ on this provision of the open enrollment statute. The attorney general concluded that denying open enrollment for this reason is inconsistent with the equal protection guarantee of the United States Constitution. Therefore, beginning in the 2008-09 school year, applications may no longer be denied for this reason.
- The school board of a resident school district (the school district in which the pupil resides) may deny a pupil's application only for the following reasons (and only if specified in school board policy).

- If the costs of the special education and related services required by the pupil's IEP would impose an undue financial burden on the resident school district.
- A resident school board may adopt a policy limiting the number of pupils transferring out of the school district under open enrollment to a specified percent of its enrollment. In the first year of the program, the allowable percent limit was 3% of the school district's enrollment. The limit increased on percent each year until it reached 10% in the 2005-06 school year, after which there was no limit on the percent of pupils who may transfer out.

Table 1: Annual Allowable Percent Limit on Transfers Out

School Year	Allowable Limit	School Year	Allowable Limit
1998-99	3%	2002-03	7%
1999-00	4%	2003-04	8%
2000-01	5%	2004-05	9%
2001-02	6%	2005-06	10%
		2006-07 and after	No limit

- For school districts that participate in the chapter 220 integration transfer program⁵, if approving the transfer out would increase racial imbalance in the school district. However, on December 20, 2007, Wisconsin's attorney general issued an opinion concerning the effect of a United States Supreme Court decision⁶ on this provision of the open enrollment statute. The attorney general concluded that denying open enrollment for this reason is inconsistent with the equal protection guarantee of the United States Constitution. Therefore, beginning in the 2008-09 school year, applications may no longer be denied for this reason.

Once a pupil is accepted into a nonresident school district under open enrollment, the pupil may be required by the nonresident school board's policy to reapply one time—and one time only—prior to the beginning of middle school, junior high school, or high school.

Open enrolled children with disabilities may be required to return to the resident school district if:

- The nonresident school board determines that the pupil's newly-developed or revised IEP requires special education or related services that are not available in the nonresident school district.
- The nonresident school board determines that there is no space in the special education and/or related services required by the newly-developed or revised IEP.
- The resident school board determines that the cost of providing the special education and/or related services required by the newly-developed or revised IEP imposes an undue financial burden on the resident school district.

Appeals

If an application was denied by either the nonresident or resident school board, the parent or pupil may appeal the denial to the DPI within 30 days of the date the notice is mailed or personally delivered to the parent. The DPI is required to uphold the school board's decision unless the DPI finds that the decision was arbitrary or unreasonable.

Funding

Open enrollment is funded by an increase in the state aid payment for nonresident school districts and a decrease in the state aid payment for resident school districts (the final state aid payment is increased or decreased by the net of the transfers in and transfers out).⁷ This is commonly referred to as an aid “transfer.” For the years 1998-99 through the years covered by this report, the basic amount of state aid transferred for each regular education open enrollment pupil was equal to the statewide average per pupil cost for regular instruction, co-curricular activities, instruction support services, and pupil support services in the previous school year.

For special education, there is no increase or reduction of state aid payments. Instead, the resident school board pays the nonresident school board directly. The amount of the payment is equal to the open enrollment per pupil transfer amount plus only the actual, additional cost incurred by the nonresident school board to provide special education and related services to the pupil.⁸

Table 2: History of Per Pupil Basic & Total Open Enrollment Aid Transfers

School Year	Per Pupil Transfer Amount	Total Amount Transferred	School Year	Per Pupil Transfer Amount	Total Amount Transferred
1998-99	$4,543	$9,579,946	2004-05	$5,496	$88,014,863
1999-00	$4,703	$19,609,504	2005-06	$5,682	$104,027,886
2000-01	$4,828	$30,468,058	2006-07	$5,845	$118,740,934
2001-02	$5,059	$42,458,620	2007-08	$6,007	$135,093,623
2002-03	$5,241	$57,407,563	2008-09	$6,225	$151,218,911
2003-04	$5,446	$73,862,334

The money transferred under open enrollment is not considered in determining a school district’s revenue limit. That is, a resident school board may not raise its tax levy to replace the loss of state aid for pupils enrolling in other school districts. Conversely, a nonresident school board receiving a pupil is not required to reduce its revenue limit by the amount of the state aid increase.

III. APPLICATIONS AND TRANSFERS

The following tables provide summary data on the number of applications received each school year and how many pupils transferred each school year.

The data report the number of applications submitted, not the number of individual pupils submitting applications. An individual pupil may apply to up to three nonresident school districts in a school year, each application submitted by the pupil is counted as a separate application.

“Applications” refers to the total number of applications submitted for the given school year. “New transfers” is the number of transfer pupils resulting from those applications. “Continuing transfers” is the number of pupils who were open enrolled in the prior school year and who are continuing to attend the nonresident school district under open enrollment, regardless of when they originally applied.

Racial Imbalance	130	91	140
Other (late, incomplete or not age eligible for school)	52	28	35	62

Notes:

- Although percent limit was no longer a reason for denial permitted in state law, applications were denied for that reason. Any appeal filed in such a denial would result in an overturn of the school board's decision.
- Note: the sum of the number of denials by reason may differ from the total number of denials. The sum may be greater than the total number of denials, because applications may be denied for more than one reason. The sum may be less than the total number of denials, because a school district may have reported the denial but not the reason(s) for the denial.

*Prior to the creation of the online application for the 2008-09 school year, all applications were submitted via paper. While the online application had features that prevented parents from submitting incomplete applications, it was impossible to prevent a parent from submitting an incomplete paper application. “Unknown” refers to a paper application that did not name a resident school district.
